FIVE FOSTER HOMES WANTED

Department of Neglected Children Seeking Homes for Five Bright Little Tots

There are five homeless children today in the Province of Alberta for whom the Department of Neglected Children wishes to find homes. It is of an altogether easy matter to secure foster child in the west. By the intended Children's Protection Act, no

But today the opportunity lies open for homes in Alberta, and only five—there are five—adoption two baby girls and three baby boys. The little girls are aged two and a half and four months respectively and are open to Protestant homes. There are two boys of four weeks and five weeks of age open to Protestant and Catholic homes, then comes a three-month-old boy who is available to Protestant parents.

As you will notice they are all under the same roof. They came to be because of an hour's haste. The subject of no little comment for so many months would babes whom they take right away in their arms with them without baby knowing it was over without a home.

To tell you the truth of use to me in this one is dark and that one is clear, for we bairnies have ways of their own which probably can best be planned by telling what parents know that not infrequently a baby born in blue eyes suddenly takes on a decided red tinted hair and same eyes.

A home is hardly a home without a child in it. Often a little child in the home loved by its foster father and its mother fills in a lack, gives initiative and makes life much happier to all three.

BASEBALL STATUS IS BADLY TANGLED

McCloskey Playing Politics in Butte Who is Edmonton's Delegate to Winnipeg Meeting, Sam Savage or M. R. Jennings?—Eckstorm Issues Call for Meeting of the International

The situation in baseball to-day of "it" and with the largest "it" that could possibly be scraped up in the company room. On one side, there is the question as to "Who's Who?" and on the other, there are ways and wherefore and what's what until one simply becomes bewildered by these interlocking confusions. Briefly summed up, the true status of affairs this morning was:

G. J. Eckstorm, president of the Western Canada League, announces he has issued a call to representatives of Montana and Alberta cities for a baseball conference to determine what action should be taken. Sam Savage, of Calgary, is in Winnipeg, waiting for the President of the League regarding a four-city league to take in Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg and Vancouver. M. R. Jennings, of Winnipeg, is en route to take place in the Winnipeg meeting for the baseball conference scheduled to take place in that city to-morrow. Mr. Gray makes no announcement as to being away. Mr. Savage, that his services as "prince" are dispensed with for this occasion.

Despite a letter to George Fraser in this city announcing that he and Lance were to visit Edmonton and Calgary to look over the baseball situation, John McCloskey in Butte denounces this letter as a fake and declares Butte is in the Union Association to stay.

George Fraser asserts that the letter from McCloskey was genuine and such a statement from Mr. Fraser is assurance that "Mutt" McCloskey is running a big bluff and that he did write a letter and that he and Lance will return.

But, the announcement had been made Saturday by Mr. Fraser that he had received a letter from John McCloskey in Butte stating that the Butte manager would come here to look the ground over, the sporting editor of the Capital wired to the Great Falls Tribune, the Helena Herald and the Butte Miner the fact that such a letter had been received. If it is one time McCloskey can do better than any other thing, it is this thing that he is spreading the "lie," but John clearly takes time to rub it in. He realized that it would not be a good thing to let the Butte fans think that the Union was

Should Be Organized in Edmonton to Promote Better Roads, Believes Mr. Hanuel

"An auto club should be organized in Edmonton by an auto club," is the only way that proper recognition will be given to the claims of highway, was the opinion expressed yesterday afternoon by Mr. Hanuel, president of the Edmonton Auto Club.

"The best Saskatchewan road is not the one that is paved, but the one that is built by the people," he said. "The best road is the one that is built by the people, and the best road is the one that is built by the people."

Not as much importance has attached to the Merrimack Hockey League this winter as there should have been. Some rattling good games have been played in that organization and every game has been for blood and played with a never-say-die spirit.

If Jack Johnson has really been looking for a fight, he should have been in Butte when McCloskey was in the city. He has been in the city for a long time and he has been in the city for a long time.

There is a slowness of "Lethbridge or Bust" with many who will be in Calgary to-morrow night. The fact is that the "Lethbridge or Bust" is a slow motion picture.

SASKATCHEWAN DROPS BIG GAME

University Decides to Pass up Match With Alberta Boys, Notifying Change of Mind at Very Last Minute—Might be Willing to Proceed in July or August, But Not Just Now

If the ice scrapers of the University of Saskatchewan ever intended to play that match they promised the Alberta boys they had succeeded in making a "Saskatchewan" out of the ice, it is indeed, they are today denouncing it. In the meantime, the boys and an effort was made to prove that the match was the direct result of the boys' indifference. It is said, but subsequent developments brought out the story that the boys are a "Saskatchewan" and that a blow indicated over the eyes by an opponent was the most probable cause of the injury.

He has been in a Vancouver hospital for a number of weeks and the attending physician says that little hope of his recovery.

When the challenge was received by the University of Saskatchewan, they accepted it without hesitation, giving the Alberta boys a challenge that made the trip a financial success, and in addition, they were to play a game which would be won at the merit of the play. Several weeks ago when the rain-rain-rain of Alberta sent them a challenge they accepted it with a spirit of eagerness that made them believe they were to play a game which would be won at the merit of the play.

The experience of the city of Calgary in the Elbow power site is another instance to show how clumsy is the handling of the resources of this province by the department at Ottawa and how far the minister of the interior comes from protecting the rights of the public.

CALGARY DISCOVERS FUNNY KINKS IN WATER REGULATIONS
In the Calgary case the city wanted the water, had notified the minister of the interior of the fact that it did want the water, and had commenced a survey to determine the water power available, when the minister of the interior notified the city that if anyone else came along with a $10,000 deposit ahead of the city that the power went to the man putting up the ten thousand.

The fact that anyone with $10,000 in the bank who desired to forestall the city of Calgary could do so by the simple process of drawing a check while the city would be under the necessity of passing a bylaw—which would take two or three weeks—practically invites any "sooner" who so desires to hold the city up.

If the hypothesis is accepted that the natural resources belong to the public, then the part of the public which should have first claim on the Elbow power site is the city of Calgary, which can use it. Yet the minister of the interior, after having been notified by Calgary that Calgary wants the water, makes a regulation which handicaps the city in its endeavor to get possession of the power site which belongs to the whole people in the first place, and at the same time he facilitates the operations of anyone who desires to forestall the city, with the inevitable result that the city will be compelled to buy back from the enterprising individual the resources which belonged to the public in the first place.

The regulation is so manifestly absurd and illogical that it will be interesting to watch the Calgary case and learn on what basis Frank Oliver justifies his action.

As pointed out Mr. Albert Jay Nock, of the American Magazine, not the least important benefit accruing to the city of Edmonton through its municipal ownership policy is the VALUABLE ADVERTISING which the city gets through the fact that it owns all its utilities.

ADVERTISING In every city on the North American continent today there is a very considerable proportion of the citizens who believe that all public service utilities should belong to the cities. In no other city except Edmonton do all the utilities belong to the city. In this city all the exponents throughout the length and breadth of Canada and United States find the example they are looking for of a city where the people own the franchises, and no speech, letter, editorial or paper on the subject, no matter who by nor where, is completed without a reference to Edmonton.

One million dollars in cold money would not get for Edmonton the same amount of advertising that the fact that the city owns its utilities has already gotten for the city at no expense at all.

The Manitoba Free Press and the Ottawa Free Press are arguing for a tariff commission of experts to advise the government in the making of a tariff.

THE INCONSISTENCY OF THE TARIFF COMMISSION The argument is that the experts would be able to discover the difference in the cost of the production of any certain manufactured article in Canada and in any other country from which the article might be imported, and that with this information available the government would be able to frame a tariff which did not give the home manufacturer a monopoly of the right to tax the consumer unduly.

The papers advancing the argument claim to be free traders in their tendencies, but it is difficult to see how they can align the idea of a tariff so framed with free trade, or explain where the usefulness of such a tariff commission would come in under a free trade arrangement.

The fundamental principle of the free trade theory is that the purchaser should have the right to buy wherever he can buy cheapest, leaving the industries to flourish which find their own prosperity through the natural advantages of the country.

On this policy the industries which would thrive in Canada are the industries which depended on the natural resources of the country for their existence, and in the lines in which Canada offers the most excellent advantages no tariff would be necessary, while for those industries which require a tariff the argument is that the country would be better off without them.

To name a tariff commission to find out what is the difference in the cost of manufacturing any certain article here and abroad would be to stultify the whole free-trade argument.

The papers which preach free trade and at the same time call for a tariff commission are inconsistent.

JUST PARAGRAPHS

They soaked a Brantford young man $25 for stealing a kiss the other day, and the judge nearly made him give it back also.

While the ice crop is still being garnered the epidemic of baseball talk breaks out again and the question is whether it is to be an all-Canadian league or a Montana-Alberta League. As there is no tariff on salary arms it looks as though the M.-A. should be feasible without waiting for the United States senate to score.

"THIS IS MY BIRTHDAY"

Charles F. Johnson
Charles F. Johnson, the successor of Eugene Hale of Maine in the United States senate, was born in Winslow, Me., Feb. 14, 1859. After attending the country schools, he went to Bowdoin College and was graduated in 1879. He took up at once the study of law, teaching a little in the meantime to help out his finances. In 1886 he was admitted to the bar, and ever since then he has practiced in the city of Waterville. He has for years been counted one of the foremost lawyers in the State of Maine. While building up an extensive legal practice, he has at the same time been interested in politics and public affairs. He has served as Mayor of Waterville and member of the legislature and was an unsuccessful candidate for governor and representative in Congress. Mr. Johnson has the distinction of being the first Democrat that the state of Maine has sent to the United States senate since before the civil war.

THE ELBOW POWER

(The Albertan.)

The latest news about power is not very encouraging, and on the contrary is quite exasperating. The city of Calgary, which includes 50 per cent, or more of the people who would benefit by the use of the Elbow river power, has made application to develop power from the Elbow river, provided that there is sufficient water to make it commercially worth while to make it expenditure. The city is unable to learn whether the river is capable of developing sufficient power to make it worth while, and it is taking such action because the Dominion has no records of the flow of the Elbow, which it should have.

The city has already gone to considerable expense in its investigations and was proceeding with the work. However, the government makes a strange announcement, that it is prepared to give this concession to the first coming along with a deposit of $10,000. As the city cannot raise the money without a loan, it is a by-law, and that would mean a delay of three or four weeks, Calgary is really shut out of it, as completely as though the government had announced that the city would not be permitted to take any action at all.

THE PATHS OF PEACE.

(Calgary Herald.)

Edmonton builders have sent in an open-shed ultimatum to the labor unions. The central city here fears that it will result in being up building during what was expected to be one of the best years on record. It looks like a short-sighted policy. Employers who come to some definite arrangement with their men as a help are much better off in the long run. If unions know then where they stand. It is to be hoped for the sake of Edmonton, that they will be so advised.

PROVINCIAL NEWS IN A PARAGRAPH

It is rumored in the southern city that the Western Canada Power company has secured the rights to the Elbow river power site and will commence the erection of a plant at an early date.

Calgary's city engineer has issued a statement in which he contends that vitrified brick cannot be made in sufficient quantities for street paving.

A seven million dollar radial line radiating in all directions from Calgary is mooted and it is rumored that construction is to commence early this spring.

Settlers in the vicinity of Stettin are asking the C. P. R. to pay for two cars of effects which were burned on a sidetrack in that town a few days ago.

The Lethbridge council has decided to submit a bylaw to the receivers providing a subsidy for a Carnegie library in that city.

Lethbridge has decided that it needs a new isolation hospital and that for the new structure will be secured this year.

The Cardston power plant was put out of commission this week owing to a shortage of coal.

The provincial government has decided to connect another telephone line between Edmonton and Lethbridge. Work will be commenced early in the spring.

Calgary has decided to enforce its building bylaw to the letter and its contractors do not take out their permits before commencing construction they will be prosecuted.

ROMANCE OF THE PEEPER

An interesting Incident in the History of a Titled House

Besides being a great landed proprietor in Warwickshire and Northamptonshire, Lord Northampton owns a lot of valuable urban property in North London, which came to his ancestor, the first Earl of Northampton, by his marriage to the daughter and heiress of the wealthy Sir John Spencer, of Crosby Hall, Bishopsgate, Lord Mayor of London. The first Lord Northampton was a person of much magnificence, and when appointed a Knight of the Garter, he rode from Salisbury House in the Strand to his installation at Windsor with such splendor and gallantry, and with so brilliant a cortege, being attended by nearly a hundred persons, that the Chapter of the Order decreed him a vote of thanks.

Carried off in a Baker's Basket

Lord Northampton—or Lord Compton as he then was—paid court to the heiress, but the opulent London cloth-worker did not consider him suitable for his daughter, and forbade her to have anything more to do with the young nobleman, who was sent about his business. But love laughs at locksmiths and everything else. Lord Northampton carried off his lady love under old Sir John's nose. He dressed up as a baker, and, calling at Crosby Hall with a big basket on his head, took away the wealthy heiress in it. Sir John, thinking he was a baker, gave him sennep; but when he discovered that his daughter had been carried off he was so angry that he sent for the police to arrest the baker. The police, however, found that the man was a nobleman, and he was released.

Queen Elizabeth's Clever Ruse

But the couple had enlisted the sympathy of Queen Elizabeth, and five years later the disappointed and disconsolate old man—for he dearly loved his beautiful young daughter—received a message from the Queen, asking him to come and be "godpapa" with her to a newly-born baby, whom she hoped he would adopt in place of his disinherited daughter. Sir John readily consented, being greatly pleased at her Majesty's graciousness and condescension. He claimed he would make the child his heir. Then the Queen told him that the child was the first-born son of his daughter Elizabeth. The old knight was astounded, but he forgave his daughter and let her retain her property at Condonbury and Islingworth, as she wished. It must be admitted that Elizabeth must have managed very wisely. She suggested his own name for the infant, and not until the old knight had said he would adopt his godson as his heir did she divulge the secret. When Sir John had got over his surprise, he had kissed and forgiven Lady Compton.

There were good grounds for the wealthy cloth-worker's objection to Lord Compton as a son-in-law, for he was very poor, and, moreover, was reckless, extravagant, and a scapegrace. But he seems, after marriage, to have settled down; and this Sir John Spencer, the second Earl of Northampton, was the gallant royalist leader who was slain at the Battle of Hopton Heath. Sir John Spencer's daughter, whom Queen Elizabeth described as possessing "the sweetest face she had seen in the City of London," proved me believe, an admirable wife.

It was at a summer hotel, and the baby, being warm and fretful cried.

"Tut! Tut! We can't disturb our neighbors this way," the fond father said, taking the child in his arms. "Let me sing him to sleep."

He sang and straightaway came a knock at the door and these words: "There's a sick lady next door, and, if it's all the same to you, would you mind letting the baby cry instead of singing to it?"

STOCK DAMAGED BY WATER

Instruments Sold under

ON JANUARY 10th the water pipes broke directly over the small goods department in the main room of our store, and for a time it looked as though the damage would be enormous, but after the goods were removed and dried off, it was found that the damage to the small instruments was confined principally to the varnish work. A large amount of sheet music, and paper goods was wet, and in consequence are unsalable except at a reduced price.

Many of the pianos in the main room were not damaged at all, while others sustained slight damage to the exterior caused by the damp atmosphere, but in no case with the exception of a few pianos in our basement sales room did the water reach the action, or interior parts. Every instrument that showed the slightest defect has been thoroughly repaired, and repolished, by experts in our shop, and they are now as good as ever.

We have decided to include these pianos with our entire stock of small instruments, and sheet music, and close out the whole by inaugurating The Greatest Sale of Musical Merchandise Ever Known in the History of Alberta. In many instances the prices have been reduced to less than 25 cents on the dollar.
